Important Health Information

Infectious Diseases

Common infectious diseases: Sexually Transmitted Infections (STIs), HIV/AIDS, Tuberculosis and Hepatitis. (CDC, 2020).

What is an infectious disease? Infectious diseases are caused by germs (such as bacteria, viruses and fungi) that enter the body, multiply and can cause infection. (CDC, 2020)

How do you contract an infectious disease? Some infections are contagious (or communicable), that is spread from one person to another. Other infectious diseases can be spread by germs carried in air, water, food, or soil. They can also be spread by vectors (like biting insects) or by animals. (CDC, 2020)

High-Risk Behavior:

Engaging in high-risk behaviors is a leading cause of infectious disease transmission, especially STIs. To prevent the spread of communicable disease, refrain from the following high-risk Behaviors:

- Intravenous drug use
- Needle sharing
- Unprotected sex
- Anal sex
- Multiple sex partners
- Same gender sex partners
- Sex in exchange of money or drugs
- High-risk sex partners (prostitutes)

Tuberculosis (TB)

TB is caused by airborne bacteria that spread through close contact with an infected person. Transmission occurs when an infected person coughs, shouts, sings or sneezes and the airborne germs are inhaled by another into their lungs. TB is not spread by clothes, handshake, sharing a drink, kissing, sharing a toothbrush or using a toilet. (CDC, 2020).

SIGNS and SYMPTOMS:

- Bad cough
(that lasts three weeks or longer)
- Pain in the chest
- Coughing up blood or sputum
- Weakness or fatigue
- Weight loss
- No appetite
- Chills
- Fever
- Sweating at night

Sexually Transmitted Infections (STIs)

The eight most common STIs spread by bodily fluid are: chlamydia, gonorrhea, hepatitis b virus (HBV), herpes simplex virus type 2 (HSV-2), HIV, human papillomavirus (HPV), syphilis and trichomoniasis. (CDC, 2020).

There are many symptoms of STIs, but most often infection is spread when no active symptoms are present. Transmission occurs through infected bodily fluid during unprotected anal, vaginal, and oral sex.

The best protection from STIs are through safe sexual habits:

- Abstinence: the most reliable way to avoid exposure and transmission of STIs is to avoid anal, vaginal and/or oral sex.
- Reduced number of sexual partners: limiting the number of sexual partners can decrease risk and exposure to STIs. It is still important that all partners get tested and share test results.
- Mutual monogamy: when both partners agree to only be sexually active with each other. A long-term, mutually monogamous, sexual relationship with an uninfected partner is a reliable way to reduce exposure and transmission of STIs.
- Protection (use of condoms): Consistent and correct use of a latex condom during every sexual encounter is highly effective to reduce the transmission of STIs. Use a condom EVERY TIME for anal, vaginal and/or oral sex.

HIV and AIDS

HIV and AIDS are transmitted by bodily fluid during anal, vaginal and/or oral sex with an infected partner and/or by sharing needles or syringes with an infected person, during pregnancy, birth or breast-feeding from an infected mother. HIV is transmitted through bodily fluids such as semen, vaginal fluid, blood and breast milk.

Substance abuse increases the risk of both of contracting and spreading HIV, also of worsening the consequences of HIV. NO vaccine exists for HIV, and there is no cure. However, HIV can be prevented through education, screening, and testing. Currently the CDC recommends certain medications that prevent the spread of HIV and AIDS. The recommended medication regimens for people with HIV today allows them to live long healthy lives. (CDC, 2020) The most effective way to prevent the spread of HIV is to avoid high-risk behaviors, utilizing clean needles every time and a condom for protected sex during EVERY sexual encounter, including oral sex.

Hepatitis

The CDC (2020) defines "hepatitis" as inflammation of the liver. Toxins, some drugs, heavy drinking and bacterial and viral infections can all cause hepatitis. The body's liver is vital to processing nutrients, filtering blood and fighting infections. When the liver is inflamed and damaged, those functions are affected. There are five types of viral Hepatitis A, B, C, D and E. The cause and transmission of hepatitis can vary, but High-Risk behaviors, including Substance Abuse, are the leading cause of viral Hepatitis. There are vaccinations for both Hepatitis A & B. Hepatitis C is most common with Intravenous Drug Use since transmission occurs through infectious blood or bodily fluids that contain blood.

SIGNS and SYMPTOMS:

- Abdominal pain
- Weakness
- Loss of appetite
- Aching joints
- Jaundice
- Headaches
- Fever
- Nausea
- Dark-colored urine
- Enlarged liver
- Digestive problems

Contact a health care provider for testing if you suspect you have symptoms or exposure via contact through high-risk behaviors.
